LOYALTY

I admire the man who considers his organization, outfit, sewer digging gang, or what not, the best aggregation in the world. As long as he is a member of the "family" circle, fault-finding and discussion is as injurious to himself as the organization. Loyalty to your organization is loyalty to your job. If you don't like your job, then for your own sake find another field for your endeavors.

(By C. Malachuk, agent California) From the Southern Pacific Bulletin.

To all of which we say Amen! But with a certain reservation.

Through some reason unknown to us, the word criticism seems to have the general meaning of fault-finding. Constructive criticism is the greatest thing we have in this world to make it a better place to live in. We should be loyal to our positions, but not to the point of overlooking those things that could be improved.

The section foreman or other bosses, who cannot take a suggestion in good faith, if it is offered that way is of a rather small caliber.

Putting ourselves and our fellow workers on the back is a good thing if carried out in moderation, but too much does an equal amount of harm.

That is as true of our own business establishments as it is of our civic and boost organizations.

If the extent of a man's civic spirit consists of saying "Hurrah for my town," he represents a lot of dead weight on the shoulders of the people in the city, who are trying to make a better town out of it.

We are living in Richmond because we think it the best town we have been able to find between the Atlantic and Pacific, but in spite of that we think there are some things that could be improved. We don't delight in shouting those faults to the outside world, but are willing to do anything within our power to help improve them.

There was a time when cities raised large budgets for Chambers of Commerce and similar organizations to get out enticing booklets about the wonder of the city. The

COAL STRIKE IS FINALLY ENDED AT WASHINGTON STRIKE SESSION

Longest and Costliest Strike In History of Nation Is Brought To Close

(By Universal Service)
PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 12.—The anthracite coal strike was settled today.

The termination of the costliest strike in the history of the industry was officially announced this afternoon, after a joint meeting of the leaders of the operators and miners.

The settlement is subject to ratification by a tri-district miners convention to be held in Scranton next Tuesday, but the ratification is understood to be a mere formality.

Work will be resumed in the mines immediately after the formal ratification. The 158,000 men who went on strike will return at the old wage scale.

Modification of wages each year is provided for. The operators yielded on their demand for some form of arbitration, the new agreement providing for collective bargaining only.

The settlement is based on a new five year contract to be in force until August 31, 1930.

The following official announcement was made on the final agreement:

"At a meeting of the anthracite conference, a tentative agreement was adopted. This agreement will be submitted to the tri-district convention for approval, after which a contract will be formally executed by both parties."

MINERS JUBILANT

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 12.—The Wyoming valley cast aside its woe today when news of the settlement of the coal strike was received.

The screech of horns, and tooting of whistles greeted the announcement of the discontinuation of the strike.

General business interests of the valley especially the merchants who have been verging on bankruptcy for months and who have been merely opening their stores for the sake of appearances, closed down for the day and allowed their employees to join in the general celebration. In the relief headquarters, tired voluntary workers signed satisfaction although in no position to cease at once their activities. It will be fully a month before the relief headquarters can cease work.

The general public received the news with no less rejoicing than the miners, who are eager to return to work. It has been the longest strike in the history of the anthracite regions and stark hunger and want were beginning to make their inroads.

When the tri-district convention ratifies the agreement on Tuesday, the mines will in all probability be re-opened within a few days.

COAL SHORTAGE

YILKESBARRE, Pa., Feb. 12.—There was still tonight little hope of any relief from the coal famine this winter, although the strike was settled today.

Expert opinion is to the effect that if the mines should be re-opened within 10 days it would be a month before normal shipments of anthracite could begin.

Should work be resumed in the mines by February 20, it will be March 20 before New York, Boston, Chicago and other cities will begin to receive newly mined anthracite.

By that time the winter should be practically over.

MACHINES COLLIDE

A car driven by Lester Morford 659 Tenth street, collided with a car driven by C. G. Johnson, 2128 Esmond avenue at Thirtieth street and Gaylor avenue late last night. Morford's car was slightly damaged. No damage was done to Johnson's machine.

Prize Offered for Phrase to Show Benefits of This City

Contest To Be Conducted During
Chamber of Commerce
Week Here

The city of Richmond is to have a boost slogan, which will set forth the advantages of this city in a striking manner. Plans for the contest, which will be conducted during the Chamber of Commerce Week to begin on February 22, were announced yesterday by A. L. Paulsen, chairman of the publicity committee of the chamber.

A first prize of $25 cash will be awarded to the person submitting the slogan which appears most descriptive and adaptable to the judges, who are to be appointed at a later date.

Four other prizes have been proposed and will be announced by the Chamber directors within a few days. They will be a first and second for students of the Richmond Union high school and a first and second for students of the Richmond grammar schools.

The slogan must be short so that it can be used to good advantage on literature and for other advertising purposes. It must be descriptive in that it will give some outstanding advantage of Richmond or include all of them.

Final details of the plan with the rules of the contest and the manner in which suggestions must be submitted, will be announced within a few days.

NEW STORM HITS COAST

(By Universal Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 12.—A new storm swept in from the Pacific and driven by a 60 mile gale caused mountainous waves to lash the coast from San Diego to Eureka doing many thousands of dollars worth of damage. However the benefit derived by the farmers will no doubt offset the loss caused along the coast. At Santa Cruz the damage is estimated at $250,000 while the San Francisco ocean beach was the scene of minor damages. From the south come reports of damage caused by high tide. The storm has not yet passed, the weather bureau announces and occasional rains are promised for Saturday with a strong southeast wind.

On the ocean beach where the high tide and strong wind caused the bulk of the derelict of the dynamited Yosemite on the beach to swing against the intake pipe of the Lurline baths, the impact knocked out 40 feet of the 18 inch cast iron pipe. The sea side of Suro baths was damaged. Snow was reported general in all the hill and mountain region.

Lincoln's Birthday Is Observed Here

Program presented yesterday at all the schools of Richmond to honor Abraham Lincoln, the great emancipator, served to impress upon the minds of the younger generation the sterling qualities of that great leader of our nation.

The war veterans and their auxiliaries were represented by speakers at each school where patriotic programs were being given. The organizations represented in the visiting delegations included the Grand Army of the Republic, United Spanish War Veterans, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, Ladies of the G. A. R., War Mothers, Spanish War Veterans Auxiliary, Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary and American Legion Auxiliary.

In 1925 there were nearly 20,000 miles of Federal Aid Road Projects under construction or approved.

CORONER JURY NAMES FOUR IN PETEET CASE ON THE BORDER

Affidavits of Victims Are Introduced at Coroner's Inquest

(By Universal Service)

SAN DIEGO, Feb. 12.—The voice of the dead directly accused Chief of Police Zenaido Llanos and Luis Amador of Tijuana today of outraging Thomas Peteet's two daughters and causing the tragic death of the family of four.

The accusations were heard from the drabbed notes of the father and the two girls and drew from a coroner's jury four remarkable verdicts naming the Tijuana Police Chief and Saloon proprietor as the assailants of Audrey and Clyde Peteet.

Audrey's dramatic death, one verdict stated, was due to asphyxiation caused by her own hand with suicidal intent.

"While despondent with grief and remorse over the fact that she was outraged by chief of police Zenaido Llanos of Tijuana," Clyde's death was attributed to the same cause.

"While despondent with grief and remorse over the fact that she had been outraged by Luis Amador, owner of the Oakland Bar at Tijuana."

Thomas Peteet and his wife, Carrie Peteet, ended their lives, coroner Schuyler Kelly's jury decided.

"While despondent with grief and remorse over the fact that their two daughters, Clyde and Audrey Peteet, had been outraged by Chief of Police Llanos and Luis Amador of Tijuana."

Only a few witnesses were necessary to convince twelve elderly men and women of San Diego on the Coroner's Jury that the daughters of Thomas Peteet were the innocent victims of one of the most degrading slurs against American womanhood.

They were the officials to whom Thomas Peteet had tearfully told of the unspeakable outrages perpetrated against his two girls, under the eyes and with the sanction of Tijuana officials.

Captain J. M. Adamson, special investigator, told of interviewing the members of the Peteet family on the day of their return from Tijuana.

Hit Runner Leaves Man Pinned Under Machine 6 Hours

After being trapped six hours under his overturned car near Bay Point Friday morning in a blinding rain storm, J. M. Henderson of El Cerrito finally succeeded in freeing himself and crawling to Bay Point for assistance early yesterday morning.

Taken to the Martinez county hospital, Henderson was treated for an injured leg and lacerations about his hands and face.

He reported to the police that he was returning to his home from Pittsburg at about 10 o'clock Thursday night when his machine was forced off of the highway by another machine that failed to stop.

His machine was overturned and he lay imprisoned until three o'clock yesterday morning. Because of the storm few motorists were traveling on the road and his plight was not discovered.

Finally freeing himself, Henderson crawled to Bay Point, dragging his useless leg. Each movement brought him terrible pain but he pushed on and reached Bay Point where he awakened Clarence Romin, a garage man.

Romin summoned Constable William Ludrick who took Henderson to the hospital for treatment.

Henderson was unable to give a description of the machine that forced him off the road.

Bills Dug From Dusty Archives
Are of Every Shape and Tenor to Prevent Strikes

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—With Republicans and Democrats both velleferously claiming the victory of the coal strike settlement, the one out-standing certainty in political Washington tonight was that Congress will proceed at once with permanent legislation to prevent future tieup of America's supply of anthracite coal.

The Republican steering committee met today and decided to instruct the House Interstate and Foreign committee to dig out of the dusty archives all the anti-coal-strike bills and to hold hearings upon them without delay.

They include all bills for seizure and government operation of the mines. They include President Coolidge's demands, first made two years ago, for authority to establish a commission which would investigate responsibility for threatened or continued strikes and place the guilt upon the side at fault.

They also include the recommendations of the United States (Continued on Page 8)

ARMY TO HAVE SAME NUMBER OF AIRPLANES

(By ARTHUR HACHTEN)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The house today adopts provisions in the War Department Appropriation Bill that will leave the country about the same number of planes in 1926 as it possesses now.

For the air service there was allowed $18,050,000, to build 741 planes and meet other expenses for the next year. These planes will replace antiquated, war-time planes still being used.

This was the program recommended by the Army High Command. Without debate the proposition slipped through the house but it can be changed before the bill is finally acted upon.

When the current year's building program is completed $5,900,000 will have been spent on new machines. For 1927 the bill carries $7,604,000 for 125 training 25 bombardment, 50 pursuit, 20 attack, 10 transport and 75 observation planes, a total of 305.

The air service on November 1, 1925, had 1,597 airplanes of all types, of which 189 were awaiting salvage and therefore had no usable value, leaving a balance of 1,408 usable planes, the appropriations committee explained.

But of this number 673 are good for only training purposes. When they have worn out it is not planned to recondition them.

Appropriation of $200,000 for new balloons for the air service was made. For general experimental work there was allotted $2,200,000 or $130,000 less than last year.

This cut was made at the suggestion of General Patrick.

World War Fought For Commerce Is Decision of Senate

(By Universal Service)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—The motion that America went into the World War to "make the world safer for democracy"—the slogan coined by Woodrow Wilson—was aggressively assailed in the Senate today by friends and foes of the war-president.

Assertion by Senator Dill of Washington, that the United States went into the war over the invasion of Belgium or the sinking of the Lusitania was "the worst blunder ever put out," started a hot debate in the midst of the consideration of the tax bill.

"We went to war because our shipping was being sunk by German submarines," declared Dill. "If Germany had not issued her submarine ultimatum, I doubt if we could have gone into the war."

"It was a commercial war to protect our commerce and if we had not loaned billions to Europe, the situation would never have come to the pass, where we were forced into the war."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—A second great suit in the federal government's drive to break up alleged monopolies of food will be filed in New York early next week according to information here today.

The suit will be directed against the two hundred million dollar National Food corporations charged by the government with designs to obtain control of the chain grocery, dairy and butter business of the nation.

Among the large corporations which the government plans to make co-defendants, with the National Food corporation are: National Stores, Inc. Recently formed through a merger of J. T. Conner company, The Ginter company and M. L. Keefe, Inc. owners and operators of chain grocery stores in the east.

Twenty-five million dollar concern operating chain grocery stores in ten states, including Massachusetts, Ohio and Michigan.

CRIMES AND PUNISHMENTS

The New York legislature proposes to so amend the penal and prison code of that state that in the future "life sentence" will mean imprisonment for life and not, as is now so often the case, imprisonment for an indeterminate period to be terminated by too lenient parole laws.

The purpose is to correct what is well known to be a serious evil—the fact that at present life sentences are very far from meaning imprisonment for life. Those sentenced to spend their remaining years in prison, irrespective of the nature of their crimes, automatically become eligible for parole after a time that sometimes is absurdly short when considered in relation to the gravity of the offenses committed.

Under ideal conditions all criminals should be confined until their reformation is complete. The sentence would be governed by the time that process of reformation required, instead of by the seriousness of the crime, as is the case under the prevailing system. But there is no infallible method of ascertaining when the transformation from criminal to useful citizen is complete. It will be readily seen that the habitual sneak-thief, whose depredations are never extensive, might be longer in the process of reformation than the man who killed in the heat of passion, or the band embezzler who robbed thousands in a moment of temptation.

But society is not yet prepared for such a purely scientific penal system and won't be within the time of this generation. For the present the states must decide between direct executive clemency or the newer parole system under which freedom awaits all prisoners having enough sense to get credit for "good behavior."

PROSPERITY BAROMETER

There are numberless methods to measure the degree of prosperity of a people. Putting it another way, prosperity betrays itself in all its phases.

It is admitted on all sides that the United States is enjoying a period of exceptional prosperity. Citizens of the country know it through their own improved condition and standard of living, but the visitor from abroad could not fail to appreciate the economic outlook here.

The usual procedure in gauging a county's prosperity is to study labor conditions, compare industrial production and railroad loadings with that of previous years, ascertain bank clearings and the volume of business in relation to the average for the decade and, of course, compare exports with imports.

The fact that there is an automobile for every six persons in the United States is frequently cited as conclusive proof of the prevailing high living standard, but there is still another telltale sign that has been long overlooked.

In this connection isn't it significant that the jewelry store now has a year round patronage, whereas only a few years ago the jeweler depended for his livelihood on the Christmas trade, watch repairing and occasional demands for anniversary and wedding gifts. This age of general affluence has cultivated and almost universal desire for making the home beautiful and for adorning the person to the great profit of the jeweler.

Some Pages from American History

By VICTOR MORGAN

The Question of Boundary Lines

The King of England never saw America. Nor did any of the reigning queens. No sovereign of Europe came to visit this country during her colonial history.

Half of the king's geographers never saw the colonies. His advisors and courtiers were as a rule ignorant of true conditions here. They believed the tale of the adventurer as innocently as they believed the stories told by sincere explorers and colonists who returned to his court.

Diplomats were greedy. They wanted all they could get. Lines on the map were easy to draw, especially when so little of the territory drawn was known. It was hard to tell in those early days, just what our continent looked like. How vast it was, was little dreamed of.

And so land was given away freely and it grew increasingly difficult to maintain any sort of boundary lines. Nothing was made definite. Boundary lines, which are always the source of such serious dispute among nations and colonies, were as uncertain as the windings of a vagrant creek. It seemed to be up to William Penn to show that boundary line disputes could be settled in only one way—by actual survey, undertaken by experts. So he set survivors at work with true instruments. The result of their work was honestly recorded and was mathematically perfect.

It is thought that Penn was the first of the colonists to see the need of this kind of work. Yet wars have been fought over line disputes and it may be that this young Quaker saved many a soldier from going to battle by the simple act of surveying his property.

While courts argued and diplomats swore and courtiers sent dispatches, young Penn set about making a definite boundary line for Delaware and Pennsylvania.

No work was more necessary, and none more neglected. Penn, you remember, was the young Quaker who ruled the Pennsylvania colony, which was named for him, so likely that even some of the neighboring Dutch and Swedes were willing to accept his government.

Thought -- Comment

had features were wisely overlooked and artists were, paid handsome prices to make the picture of the home of a laborer look like the mansion of a movie star. The cheapness of factory cities, wonderful transportation facilities and similar items were set forth in great detail.

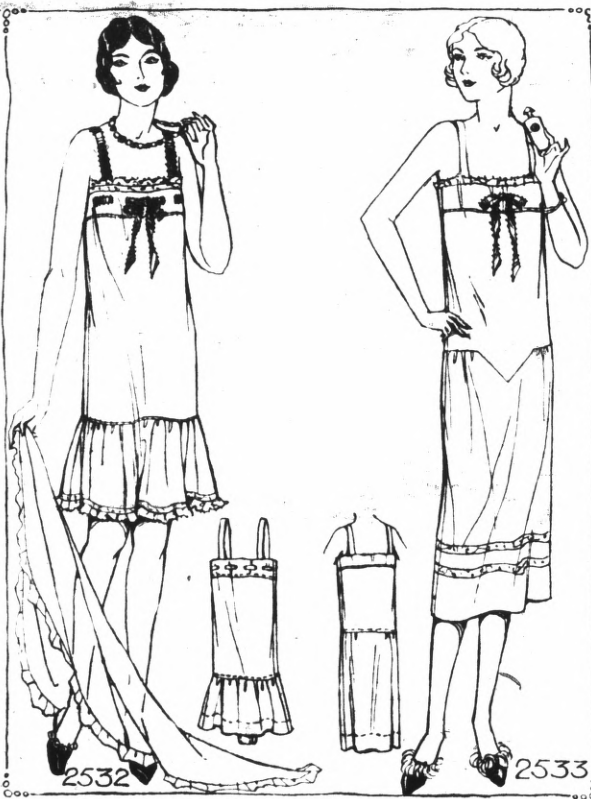

And strange to say many expected capital to flock to towns on the strength of these circus posters and build factories and wonderful homes. Times have changed somewhat though within the past few years. Organizations really in earnest to build a better town, do not spend thousands to pay some high pressure booster a salary to deliver fiery talks before luncheon meetings and similar functions. Those funds are now being devoted to the improvement of those little things that make a town a better place to live in.

If housing conditions, schools, transportation facilities, and such items are better than in the average city you want to have to spend a cent to attract a single industry. The industries will be at your door begging to be admitted.

Yes, we should believe in our organization and our town and boost it or get out of both. BUT if we haven't the strength to suggest some constructive criticism, we should spend our leisure moments shaking hands with our first cousin, the jelly-fish.

SHADES OF DARWIN

It was bound to come.

Discovery of a race of ape-eating Africans who believe that the monkey is descended from man is reported by Rev. H. C. Graham, a Baptist missionary, just returned to civilization after spending 37 years in the lower Congo.

A Batangi leader told the missionary: "In many ages past the ape's ancestors were man. They got into debt, and made enemies. So they ran away to the forest and refused to speak."

Anything is possible, but this doesn't sound reasonable. Men in debt do not usually run away, and never lose their tongue. What they are forever saying is, "Could you let me have ten?"

SYNOPSIS

Molly Shannon, State University student, has her first "real taste of life" when Stephen Renfro, efficiency expert, takes her to the theatre. Mrs. Parker, her kind-hearted landlady, supplied money with which to buy her a presentable dress. Molly is in the seventh year of rapture until Miss Brian, of the faculty, calls her in one day and warns her against "going out with Renfro. It makes her 'talked about' she says. But Renfro persists in his attentions and Molly accepts his proposal of marriage.

"I'm afraid, my dear, that's the snobbish, small sort of person you've been allowing to interfere with your work and make you wretched and ill and thin as a little wraith."

"Does everybody—know?"
"Well, it's a small world, this beehive of ours—things do get about . . . The older woman rose and picked back her chair with a gesture of finality. "And now there's just one thing for you to do—make a clean, decisive cut and have it over with."

Molly rose, too. She was staring miserably straight in front of her. "One thing more, Mrs. Parker is the kindest creature in the world, but she lets her impulsive, romantic old heart run away with her. You mustn't listen to her about this. Promise me you won't."

Molly promised and got out of the room—out of the building and under the open sky. She groped and stumbled her way to a familiar "retreat" in the woods beyond the campus and there hid the first hot inexpressibility of her anguish and shame. She threw herself face down upon the indifferent cool earth. She lay there for hours, trembling and quivering from sheer torture, without even the bleak relief of tears. It seemed impossible she could ever go back—face those people who knew, who had talked about her and pitied her. If they had only let her alone. . . .

"If it's Stephen," she said, "I don't want to see him."

CHAPTER XI

When she came back to town on the first day of August she was greeted by pretty much the same group of an August ago, with an addition or two—and the subtraction of Stephen. She was too numb and dispirited to take note of Mrs. Parker's mysterious, far-away expression while they were clearing up the dishes after supper. But when that game little woman came bustling up to her room an hour later and popped a shining, Santa Claus face in at the door, Molly understood.

"Guess who's downstairs . . . !"
Santa Claus grinned in a stage whisper, peering out cautiously from over the crooked old spectacles.

Molly looked at her for a moment in silence. Then, "If it's Stephen," she said, "I don't want to see him."

That was hard enough. But Mrs. Parker's look of a crestfallen guardian angel who has just had her wing feathers plucked was worse. Molly turned abruptly and went over to the window. "Please," she finished without looking round, "if he comes again, don't tell me about it."

Mrs. Parker it was who finally handed her over to the enemy. Mrs. Parker, Stephen's sworn enemy. Face to face with Stephen on a shadowy evening campus—the perdition little fairy godmother melting shamelessly into the middle distance—Molly knew that she was lost. Pride, resentment, everything, was swept away, forgotten, in the heaven of reconciliation before. Stephen asked her to marry him. He admitted with his usual frank renunciation that he hadn't meant to. He hadn't even wanted to. He thought he could get on without her. Since he couldn't—here his most whimsically appealing smile—what else was there to do?—Later he told her that he had an editorial position offered him in New York. He had been on a newspaper there once, and somebody had, oddly enough, kept track of him. He was going to take Molly with him.

Then he took Molly again in his arms and kissed her—thoroughly, teasingly, as of old, even to the twin hollows in her neck and the spots behind her ears. She wavered a bit sardonically, though, even through her rapture, whether the offer of marriage wasn't a pretty steep price to pay for that privilege. At all events, at midnight they walked home hand in hand like happy children through the August darkness; she at least treading stars. And all night she was so drunk with joy she could not close her eyes to sleep. She did not want to sleep. She might lose a moment of something beautiful and precious, something that was hers now and might never be hers again. . . .

There was one thing, Stephen added casually at the door before he said good night, it would be as well to say nothing to anybody yet. He had still some affairs to be settled, and if it was no use taking the world into one's confidence, anyhow.

One evening toward the end of August the group at Mrs. Parker's had planned an excursion to a Mexican bazaar downtown. When the hour agreed upon came and passed without Stephen's appearance, Molly, who knew well his magnificent indifference to promptness, insisted that the others should not wait. Mrs. Parker was reluctant about leaving her, but they all went off at last, waving good-by to her on the front steps in the moonlight.

A clock striking inside the house startled her rudely from this fearfully yet intoxicating reverie. Ten o'clock! Stephen was late! She moved down the steps, gazed out toward the street, listened intent for an unhurried footfall—more trifle of being an hour or so behind time would never discomfit Stephen. Presently she walked to the gate, looked up and down the street, listened again. The night had grown to her straining ears preternaturally still. It seemed to be listening with her.

When the clock struck eleven and still he had not come, she forgot her own foolish timidity in a panic of fear for Stephen. Something had happened. Perhaps he was ill and with no one to look after him; or hurt—lying helpless and in pain. She mounted the steps, threw open the screen door, and walked without a tremor into the blackness which filled every crack and crevice of the deserted house like a palpable fifth element. She felt her way to the back hall, switched on the light, and opened the telephone book.

She had never called Stephen's number before and there was some difficulty about finding it—her fingers trembled so. . . . For a long time she could get no answer. She alternately pleaded with a cross and sleepy central and shook frantically at the hook. After several small eternities a man's voice, resentful and husky with sleep, materialized at the other end of the wire.

"Mr.—who? . . . Who do you say? . . . No, I can't hear you—shake up your hook. Oh, Renfro! . . . He's not here." Unmistakable symptoms of hanging up.

Then Molly, faint but insistent, "Do you know—where he is?"

"No." Stronger symptoms of hanging up.

"One minute—please . . ." With every syllable her voice grew fainter and more chill. "It's—very—important. Can't you tell me—at least—when he went out?"

There was a perceptible hesitation, then the man snapped out with uncivil finality: "He packed his grip, paid his rent, and left town on the noon train. That's all I know. Good-by."

"Please—please . . . !" Molly entreated desperately, "he didn't leave—any word?"

"No, no word. Good-by!" Perhaps Stephen was in some dreadful trouble that he dared not even tell her about. Perhaps he needed her at this moment as he would never need her again. It was cruel of him, though, not to let her help him—to shut her out in this darkness and cold and unspeakable terror. Or perhaps—

But reason paused before that other vague and as yet mercifully nameless possibility. Some things the mind cannot accept all at once. They must be come by degrees—one drop of anguish at a time—or they unbalance, destroy. . . . She turned out the light and groped her way stumblingly up the ink-black stairs to her room. Here in the darkness she undressed and crept shivering, despite the night's torrid heat, into bed. A little later she heard voices below; and directly Mrs. Parker came into the house and straight up the stairs toward her room. Alarm sounded in her footsteps.

The Vice-president E. W. Rogers, as a member of the committee of education, gave a talk on the newly organized Sportmanship Brotherhood and in ending his remarks, quoted the saying of Matthew, Wolf, vice-president of the A. F. of L. and president of the Sportmanship Brotherhood: "What the world is in need of today, is a new approach to a common understanding. The richness of the nations of the future must be founded on the wealth in health of their citizens. ## BEST BAD MAN AT CALIFORNIA IS THRILL FILM

When you see Tom Mix in "The Best Bad Man," which opened a two days' engagement last night at the California theatre, you're going to experience more genuine thrills than you ever believed could be crowded into one evening. For Mix, who never has been a sit-by-the-fire type of screen actor, is incessantly on the jump in this picture. It would seem to the lay mind that, sooner or later, he would run out of raw material from which to create thrills, but such doesn't appear to be the case. At any rate, not when "The Best Bad Man" was put on the screen.

"The Best Bad Man" is the screen adaptation of Max Brand's novel, "Senior Jingle Bells," and it is an exceedingly entertaining story. It affords both Tom and Tony opportunities galore for the sort of hazardous feats that made them famous and will thrill even those blasé screen patrons who fancy themselves thrill-proof.

Other features on the same program include "Time Flies," another one of those funny Lupino Lane comedies; International News; "Indoor Radio Community Singing," Larry Canelo at the organ.

Richmond Picture Introduces a New Dog to Movie Fans

The sustained excitement, love interest, natural comedy and human appeal mark "The Silent Accuser," the Metro-Goldwyn picture at the Richmond theatre. It was produced and directed by Chester Franklin, and is presented by Louis B. Mayer.

"The Silent Accuser" is a melodrama, novelty and also serves to introduce a new star to the screen. The newcomer is Peter the Great, an unusually intelligent police dog. If there is such a thing as personality in a dog, Peter the Great has it.

Peter the Great plays the title role of the story which was written by Jack Boyle and adapted to the screen by Frank O'Connor and Franklin, who have crammed their story with fast action. The cast is headed by Eleanor Boardman, Raymond McKee and Earl Metcalfe.

In handling the story of how a dog, through his almost human instinct and with the aid of the heroine, brings justice on the real murderer when the hero is falsely accused of the crime, the director has introduced a situation that has never been used before.

"The Silent Accuser" is one of those rare pictures which has equal gripping power on grown-ups and children. Neither can it fail to respond to its certain appeal. Cameraman Charles Dwyer is responsible for the splendid photography. Cedric Gibbons designed the sets and Sophie Wachner created the costumes. Lloyd Nosler was film editor.

Other features include "A Parisian Knight," a comedy scream; "Felix Trips Thru Toyland," a Felix the Cat comic.

Santa Fe Railroad Increases Earnings

President W. P. Story of the Atchinson Topeka and Santa Fe has estimated that the net income for that line in 1925 at between $1,000,000 and $5,000,000 more than 1924 when the total was $42,181,806 or $14.49 a share on the common.

Final figures have not been completed.

Story declared that the other incomes would probably show a decrease of about one million dollars due to the increased production costs of the company's oil companies.

Fined for Violating Women's Labor Law

Charged with violation of the state woman's eight hour law, Harry Battiger, operator of the Richmond-San Rafael Ferry restaurants with headquarters at Point Richmond, pled guilty yesterday morning and was fined $25 by Justice of the Peace John Roth.

W. H. Urmey, state agent for the labor commission charged that Helen Ritchy worked more than 8 hours in one day for Battiger. Battiger admitted the charged but declared that the girl worked overtime because of arrangement she made with another waitress in order to gain shorter hours the next day.

LOCAL CAGERS WIN FROM THE MISSION HIGH

Richmond high school took the fast Mission high school quartette down the line 26-23 yesterday afternoon at San Francisco.

The feature of the game was the good pass work by Barbieri, Dyer and Milicevich.

Blondy Villalobos was high man for the local team with ten points every so often Blondy gets the long ones and yesterday's game saw him in his best form.

Rowdy Dyer, who has been making a name for himself lately as a point getter, came through with six points and Captain Ernest Barbieri tied him.

It was an easy game for the locals, but toward the end the

FINNISH SKATER BREAKS RECORD

(By Universal Service)

LAKE PLACID, Feb. 12.—(Class) Finnish skating phenom clipped 1.5 seconds from the record in a one mile race in the first day's competition for the American cup, when he bested Charles Jewtraw of Lake Placid, America's Olympic ace, in the feature event of the program here this afternoon. Jewtraw earlier in the afternoon scored a close victory in the 220 yard event.

Mission coach sent in some subs and the game became fast and furious.

The line up was: Villalobos, f. 10; Dyer, f. 6; O. Johnson, c. 4; Barbieri, c. 6; Milicevich, g. 0; subs: Gray for Milicevich and Clark for Villalobos.

De Molay Cagers Are Ready for Pennant Game

The Richmond Chapter of De Molay basketball team is eagerly awaiting the county championship game with Martinez which will be staged tonight at the Roosevelt Junior high school.

Manager Francis Marchetti reports that the tickets have been going like wildfire and few are left.

There is no doubt that this will be one of the best games staged here this year for the Martinez team has cleaned up some of the best teams up the county and the local team was runner up for the state championship.

The team will probably go into the game with the following line-up: Rowdy Dyer and Duke Morrison, forwards; Harry Bonham, center; Captain Bunny Mith, and Ralph Lee guards; Louis Kiraly, substitute guard.

SUZANNE AND HELEN MATCH IN THE OFFING

(By Universal Service)

CANNES, France, Feb. 12.—The tennis machinery of the Carlton club tournament, which is slowly working towards a match between Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen, swung into motion once more today, after a seventy-two hour lay off, as both of the champions won their singles matches without the loss of a single game.

Miss Wills in defeating the veteran player, Mrs. O'Neil, 6-0, 6-0, contradicted the prevalent theory that illness would tend to slow up her game. Suzanne, likewise, by her 6-0, 6-0, defeat of Miss Bowser, whom she allowed but four points in contrast to her own forty eight, demonstrated that the rest period had not dulled her brilliant striking.

Later in the day the American girl and the French court wizard figured in two more victories, these being in the women's doubles division. Miss Wills, paired with Miss Cotes, defeated the Greek champion, raced through a match with Miss Gay and Miss Houston, 6-0, 6-0, while Suzanne and her partner, Miss Biko Vlasco, conquered Mrs. Hall and Miss Gould, 6-0, 6-1.

Miss Wills looked so convincing in her two love set victories today, that the odds shrank to 4-1, as against 7-1 last week. If the American champion continues to hit the ball as she did today it is likely that odds on the big battle will shift to 3-1 or 2-1.

The course which was still spongy from the three day rain, slowed play considerably.

Bandits Defiant As They Wait to Face the Gallows

(By Universal Service)

CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Last minute appeals have been made to Governor Small to save Jack Woods and Joseph Holmes, bandit slayers, from the gallows tomorrow morning. The executive indicated, however, that he would not interfere with the execution.

Attorneys for the doomed men said they would make no further effort to save them by legal means, every attempt made thus far having ended in failure.

Both of the men tried to keep up a bold front, but were nervous when visited by reporters.

"We're game; we're ready, that's all," Holmes said.

When asked if he has anything to say to the world, the bandit became sullen.

"We haven't got anything to tell the damn world," he answered. "The world is no friend of ours."

Woods and Holmes, who were convicted of the murder of Frank Redkey, a cashier, during a spectacular hold up of the fashionable Drake Hotel last October, are in the death cells of the county jail under heavy guard. Every precaution is being taken by the authorities to prevent either a jail break or self destruction.

Heavy guard has been mounted about the county jail to prevent any outside agency assisting the men to escape.

Sorority Sisters Predict Victory For Tennis Star

(By Universal Service)

BERKELEY, Cal., Feb. 12.—"Success and love to you."

A cablegram containing these words of encouragement and faith was sent this evening to Helen Wills on the eve of her match with Suzanne Lenglen, French tennis star, by the Kappa Kappa gamma sorority chapter at the University of California, of which Miss Wills is a member.

In addition several of the "sisters" sent individual messages. "Win? of course Helen will win," the Sorority girls chorused. They are highly indignant at reports of betting with heavy odds on the French girl to win.

"If we were betting," the co-ed's coyly admitted "We would certainly follow with our money where our hearts led us where Helen is concerned."

Y. M. D. Wins In Volleyball Games

The Y. M. D. took two stiff games from the Wanderers volleyball team at the Y. M. C. A. gym last night.

The scores were: First game, Y. M. D. 15; Wanderers 9; second game, Y. M. D. 2; Wanderers 15; third game, Y. M. D. 15; Wanderers 13.

Joe Vargas was star man for the Y. M. D.

In the second game of the evening the Wesley team were defeated by the First Christian team 15-4, and 15-6. Dutch Holland was the star man for the two games.

In the third athletic contest of the evening, Carrol Pitchford and Walter Seigle proved themselves the handball champions of the local Y.

RUTH TRAINING FOR COMEBACK AS SWAT KING

(By Universal Service)

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 12.—Babe Ruth had to pay that $5,000 fine tacked on him by manager Miller Huggins for last summer's indiscretions, but he hopes to get it back this year.

The belief had persisted since last summer that the Yankee management relented after Babe promised to be good and didn't collect the five grand, but Babe quashed this report today.

"Yes, I had to pay the fine," he said. "It was taken out of my salary, but I hope to get it back this year. If I have a good season I don't see why they shouldn't cancel the fine."

I know I was all wrong in that mix-up with Miller Huggins last summer. Things broke wrong for me from the start of the season, and I was in an irritable state of mind. But I've learned my lesson and I'm going to try to square things this year. If I make good I'll ask the colonel for that five grand back."

If the Yankee management relents, as Babe hopes, that $5,000 he spent to get into shape this winter may pay him four to one.

Babe's principal dissipation down here is golf and attending the dog races.

He will not join the Yankee Rookies, who will arrive here a week from Sunday. But will continue to play golf until March 1, when he will report for baseball practice.

World War Fought For Commerce Is Decision of Senate

son changed his attitude toward the war, Senator Swanson of Virginia, sprang to the defense of Wilson.

"I rescind any imputation that President Wilson 'changed his mind,'" said Swanson. "It is slander on a patriotic man. He warned Germany that a resumption of submarine warfare would result in war. It was to protect our commerce, to defend our flag on the high seas and maintain our national sense of honor that we went to war."

In reply to Senator Reed, who asked if the "murdering of American women and children on the Lusitania" was not a sufficient cause for war, Dill declared:

"If we had any cause, it was that cause and if we had any business at all in going into war, we should have gone in then. As it was, we did not go and the American people approved President Wilson's decision."

Dill expressed the opinion that Americans should have been kept off the Lusitania "so they could not have been used as an insurance for the gunpowder aboard that vessel."

"I thought it was a war to make the world safe for democracy," interposed Senator Watson. Swanson repeated his assertion that was declared to protect American commerce, and Watson said that he agreed with him.

C. M. T. C. CAMP ARRANGEMENTS ARE BEING MADE

AN LEAN ISCO, Feb. 12.—With studies appropriations than last year, 2000 young men from California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah and Nevada, are to be given thirty days outdoor training this summer at Fort Monte, Camp Lewis and other encampments of the Citizens' Military Training Camps in the North coast area. Plans under way by Major General Charles T. Menninger, corps area commander, are successful.

The Ninth Corps area camps will open in June 12, for the earliest date being June 12, for Fort Missoula, Montana, and Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming. The ones to open will be the California camps at Del Monte, Fort Winfield Scott and Fort MacArthur.

Those who meet the requirements, passing standard physical and mental tests adopted by the government, will be sent to the camps without personal expense and upon completion of the course will receive return tickets to their homes. Students will range in age from seventeen to thirty-one.

The C. M. T. C. course this year will be divided between camping, hiking, shooting, athletics and citizenship studies, with the students enrolled in four different courses. First year men without prior training will be given elementary drills, most of their work being designed to build up bodily strength by outdoor sports.

Advance classes, called red, white and blue courses for the other three years of the course will offer instruction in infantry studies, field artillery and coast artillery problems, cavalry tactics and horsemanship, military methods and radio.

It is also planned to give individual instruction in the physical training of individual students to correct defects that might become chronic in later life. Data compiled in all the camps held since 1921 is now being studied with this end in view.

Predicts Passage Of Radio Bill to Stop "Air Hogs"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—Passage of the White Radio bill providing for equal use of the air and investing the secretary of commerce with power to stop air hogs was predicted today by Representative Scott of Michigan.

Scott is chairman of the House Marine and Fisheries Committee, which has approved the bill. He will report the measure to the house next Wednesday, and urge immediate action.

Provisions of the bill include full authority for the secretary of commerce to license broadcasting stations, and reject applications when he believes they would be contrary to the public interest.

Appeal from the Secretary's rulings to a commission of five members, appointed by the President.

Permits to broadcast to run for five years and be renewable; may be revoked for failure to comply with regulations of the secretary of commerce.

Authority to prevent companies from monopolizing radio communication.

Secretary may assign call letters, wave lengths, power, location, time of operation and character of emission.

No fees required for permits or licenses.

Each station entitled to at least one broadcasting station.

In discussing the high cost of living, a farmer said to a coal miner, "Don't forget that we can burn our corn easier than you can eat your coal."

It cost $1,740,000 for the government to correct the addresses on letters in 1924.

Individual instruction in the physical training of individual students to correct defects that might become chronic in later life. Data compiled in all the camps held since 1921 is now being studied with this end in view.

GERMAN BANDIT TRIES TO ESCAPE ON BICYCLE; IS PURSUED BY DRESDEN ROLLER-SKATING POLICEMAN

Twenty Dresden policemen assigned recently to learn roller-skating so that they might more quickly cover the outlying districts of the city. One of the "mounted" men is shown above starting in pursuit of a bandit fleeing on a bicycle.

Search Continues For Head of Villa

(By Universal Service) CHICAGO, Feb. 12.—Fear of international complications grow here today as the rumor persisted that the head of Francisco Villa would arrive in Chicago within the next few days. And federal agents and anthropologists continued to play a silent game with the skull and brain.

Following publication in a Mexican newspaper that an "Eccentric Chicago Millionaire" had financed the robbery of the bandit's grave, government agents were asked by Mexico to keep a lookout for the coveted head. But they haven't seen it, but will grab it the first chance they get.

One Chicago alienist, Dr. Orlando F. Scott, claimed that he had been invited to view the head and study the bumps and slants of the skull which concealed the brain that conquered Northern Mexico and entered Southern United States. But even he refused to divulge who had sent him the invitation, or even discuss the matter further.

So both sides are waiting, silently, for the arrival of the "most villainous head in Mexico."

Congress Gets Busy to Avoid Another Strike

(Continued From Page 1) Coal Commission for government distribution of available coal, for the right of municipalities to sell coal at cost to inhabitants and for seizure of the mines under certain circumstances. The investigation was made two years ago at a cost of $600,000, but Congress only printed the commission's report a month ago.

The first announcement that a strike settlement had been effected was made this forenoon by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, who has had a hand in the negotiations since January 12.

Speaker Longworth announced to the House at 12:30 "with pleasure" that he had been officially notified by Davis that the agreement has been reached by operators and miners.

Then followed a deluge of statements, ranging from the "expression of pleasure" of President Coolidge at the White House to the partisan claimings of Republicans and Democrats in both branches of Congress.

Democrats announced they will go ahead with their party caucus to formulate a definite program of anti-coal-strike legislation.

Representatives Somers, Boylan and others of the New York Democratic delegation, who have been refused a coal strike conference with the President, declared that the pressure of public opinion aroused by them "has forced a settlement while a supine administration was content to let people freeze, starve and die."

Republican four leader, Tillson of the House and Chairman Parker of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, declared in reply that the settlement reflected the advantage of the government's "hands off" policy. Any intrusion by the government would have muddled the settlement prospects, they declared.

Administration chiefs, on the other hand, asserted that Secretary of Labor Davis had brought operators and miners to a sense of their responsibility, and that strike-settlement credit, therefore, was the administration's.

PENNSYLVANIA CLUB HAS VALENTINE PARTY

A Valentine party was held last night by the Pennsylvania club which met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Barnhart, 609 Barrett avenue. Games were played and among the winners were: A. J. McNary, Mrs. C. L. Bergstresser, P. I. Mickey, and Mrs. Annabelle Long.

The table was tastefully arranged with Valentine decorations. The next meeting will be held on March 12, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Bergstresser at 2662 Esmond avenue.

Middle of Week Most Dangerous To Automobiles

Tuesday and Wednesday, not Sunday are the most dangerous days of the week in the automobile world. It is shown in an analysis of the 56 deaths by automobiles made public today by the Eastbay Safety Council, in Oakland.

During the year just passed 21 persons were killed on Tuesdays and Wednesdays and only six on Sunday which disproved the theory that the greatest number of accidents happened on week end outings.

Monday is the safest day of the week, according to the analysis which shows that only three deaths fell on that day. There were five on Thursday, 8 on Friday and 9 on Saturday.

The most dangerous hours of the day are between six and eight o'clock in the evening. During this period thirteen deaths occurred. Between three o'clock and six, twelve persons were killed and eleven met death between eight and ten in the evening. The conclusion was reached that just after dusk, most accidents occurred.

The largest number of fatalities for any one month occurred in December when there were seven deaths. There were six in January and only one in July. Skidly weather, long hours of darkness and increased traffic during the Christmas shopping rush did their share in increasing the percentage of traffic accidents.

The analysis shows that the pedestrian is most often the victim. Of the 56 persons killed, there were thirty nine pedestrians. Seven were automobile passengers and ten were drivers.

Responsibility for most of the accidents was placed upon the driver. He was charged with 33 deaths and only seven were held to be the fault of the pedestrian.

The record shows that eleven of the deaths are chargeable to hit-and-run drivers. Drunken drivers numbered two and miscellaneous causes including speeding and reckless driving totaled 33.

Thirty-four men and boys were killed and twenty-two women and girls met death. Forty-three of the victims were over twenty years of age and thirteen were under that age. The Safety Council estimated the monetary loss to the community at $114,322.00 basing the figures on a statement prepared by Statistician of the State, L. E. Ross.

The Safety Council sees indications that there will be a lowering of the death rate this year in Oakland. There were three deaths in January of this year as against six in the same month of 1925 and no deaths have yet been reported in Oakland during February. Chief of Police James T. Drew of Oakland said yesterday that he believed the new ordinance calling for a full stop at all main boulevards is already having a tremendous effect in reducing accidents in-as-much as police records show most of the accidents occur at street intersections.

The figures show not only a reduction from six to three in January of this year over January of 1925 just before the Boulevard stop system was put into effect, but a reduction from seven deaths in December.

The Police Chiefs of all the eastbay cities plan to cooperate in a determined drive to enforce the boulevard stop law by making wholesale arrests of violators. It was announced with the other Chiefs of Police at the Safety Council headquarters.

Coroner Jury Names Four In Peteet Scandal

(Continued From Page 1) The Peteet family, he found Thomas Peteet sitting in the yard, weeping. The mother and her two girls were in one bed, weeping hysterically. To him they sobbed the tale of their brutal treatment.

"There is only one thing for me to do," Peteet told Captain Adamson. "I must go back to Tia Juana and kill Chief Llanos. My wife and children demand that I do it, even if it means my own murder."

He was dissuaded from returning to Tia Juana. Captain Adamson read the statements he had obtained from Thomas Peteet and the two girls. "I know that I was attacked by the Chief of Police," was Audrey's accusation.

"Luis dragged me to a hotel and attacked me," Clyde's last message before death stated.

Deputy Collector of customs Fred A. Markley related the stories told by Peteet in his search for his daughters. He told of notifying Captain Adamson, and of advising him to obtain statements from the Peteet family.

Inspector Markley referred to other outrages against American women in Tia Juana's dives.

"Many times we get complaints at the border," Inspector Markley testified. "Women go to Tia Juana, are plied with drinks and then steered to dives where the police outrage them. These are common occurrences, but the border guards can do nothing for the crimes are committed in Mexico."

One of the most dramatic episodes of the inquiry over the bodies of the Peteet family was the "silent witness."

Accusations against Chief Llanos and Amador were read from the sworn affidavit of Rudolph Bachman, German bartender, employed by Amador and who, with his wife, was a witness to the doping and kidnapping of Audrey and Clyde Peteet.

Bachman is missing. He told American officials that if he should tell his story his life would be in danger.

While the inquiry was under way, drastic steps were begun to close objectionable dens of iniquity in Tia Juana where similar atrocities are known to have been committed.

Mayor Federico Pallacio, in charge of the investigation, has promised American authorities he will rid Tia Juana of its notorious characters, many of them fugitives from the United States, and that within two weeks he will close up fifty per cent of the sixty-seven saloons that now exist in the border town.

Laws do not breed respect for law. Respect for law is bred by a regard for honesty and the rights of others.

RICKARD IN SOUTH

(By Universal Service) NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—While Tex Rickard sped southward today local sporting circles buzzed with speculation as to the intended activities of the great promoter. One report had it that Tex would place a Hockey club in Los Angeles next year in addition to the one he is now operating in New York.

Twenty-one million letters were sent to the dead letter office in 1925 because they were improperly addressed.

The Best Milk for Babies

Consider the fact that we have our own cows that are carefully watched, and graze on our own Clover fields. We also bottle and pasteurize the milk right on our own ranch. That's why our milk is preferred for babies.
